NOTE

In making this catalogue of practically all Catholic books in English published to-day (with the exception of pamphlets, prayer-books, and school-books), we have included not only the publications of the regular Catholic publishing houses of America, England, Ireland, Canada, Australia, India, and those issued by Catholic authors themselves, by Catholic institutions, and from the press of Catholic periodicals, but also the Catholic books brought out by non-Catholic publishers.

In listing books in our "Catholic Book News," which we have published regularly for 39 years, as well as in our book catalogues, we have always made it a rule to include only Catholic publications. Books written by Catholics but not Catholic in contents were not included. We have followed this rule as far as possible in making this catalogue, and it is believed that it will therefore prove more practical than any other. But as it was more difficult to follow this rule in making a catalogue which practically includes all Catholic publications in print to-day in English, it may be that some books are included which under this rule should not be in it. Books may also have been overlooked which ought to be in this catalogue. We shall be thankful to the Rev. Clergy, Religious, and lay people, as well as to librarians, publishers, and booksellers, if by calling our attention to any errors they may see they will help us to make this list as perfect as possible through the supplements which will appear from time to time. There has been quite a controversy on this subject of late, and we are glad to see this rule approved by "America," July 13, 1912, and by the "Ave Maria," August 3, 1912, when they say that fiction written by Catholics but excluding anything Catholic should not be classified as Catholic books. The above-mentioned leading Catholic periodicals say:

"The Catholic seal dignifies a book and should not be accorded lightly; and no novel has a right to it which carefully excludes from its pages persons and things Catholic or fails to harmonize in tone and trend with Catholic sentiment and belief. We think a Catholic who can write will write best if he writes naturally and lets his characters act, talk, and think in his books as he would have them do in life. Our Catholic writers of widest reputation have done so,—but that is a matter of individual choice. Should he choose otherwise, and decide to exclude from his writings Catholic customs, manners, doctrines, practices, and personages, he may produce good and useful works, but he may not call them Catholic, and neither may the conscientious critic."

"Benziger's Magazine" has always followed this principle in selecting its popular serial stories.

ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY YEARS

In presenting herewith a practically complete catalogue of the Catholic books published to-day in English (with the exception of schoolbooks, prayerbooks, and pamphlets), Benziger Brothers, as one of the oldest Catholic publishing houses in the world, and probably the oldest in English-speaking countries, take the opportunity of adding their voice to the universally expressed opinion that the most important Catholic literary enterprise attempted in this country is the Catholic Encyclopedia, now completed. This applies not only to the pecuniary outlay involved in its production, but to its success in assembling from the world of letters such an admirable body of s c h o l a r l y writers, to whom it owes the un d o u b t e d in- fluence it ex ercises.

JOSEPH CHARLES BENZIGER
Born 1762, died 1841
Founder of the Firm

When a work of s u c h rec- ognized authority finds it of suffi- cient importance to publish a bio- graphical sketch of the founder of the h o u s e of B e n z i g e r Brothers, the present members of the firm trust that it will not b e considered a m i s s if they reprint this ar ticle in honor of their great- grandfather and g r e a t - g r e a t - grandfather.

This article, which may be found on page 484, vol. II, of T h e Catholic Encyclopedia, is as follows:

"BENZIGER, JOSEPH CHARLES, founder of the Catholic publishing house that bears his name, b. at Einsiedeln, Switzerland, 1762; d. there, 1841. In 1792 he started a small business in religious articles, but he soon felt the effects of the French Revolution. The French invasion forced him to take flight with his family, and for about a year they resided at Feldkirch, Austria, where his eldest son, Charles, was born. In 1800 they returned to Einsiedeln, which had been devastated by pillage and army requisitions. All Mr. Benziger's modest fortune was gone, but with redoubled efforts he set about repairing his losses, and started in business as a bookseller. He was made president of the county, and his credit and personal financial sacrifices proved of great help, especially during the famine of 1817. In 1833 Charles and Nicholas Benziger succeeded their father under the firm name of "Charles and Nicholas Benziger Brothers," and two years later, in addition to their book publishing business, began the lithographing of religious pictures, as well as the coloring of them by hand, before the introduction of chromolithography.

"Charles Benziger, son of the founder, b. 1799, d. 1873, a man of unusual strength and energy, with a good classical education, devoted himself especially to the literary end of the business. In 1840 the 'Einsiedler Kalender' was founded; it is still published and furnishes an interesting illustration of the development of the art of printing. 'The Pilgrim,' a popular Catholic periodical established at the same time, lasted only ten years. Charles, too, took an active part in public life, and showed moderation and energy as President of the Canton of Schwyz. His health failed and in 1860 he retired from business.

"Nicholas Benziger, brother of the preceding, b. 1808, d. 1864, who took charge of the technical part of the business, proved himself a pioneer, introducing to the mountain village of Einsiedeln a series of improved trades methods as they appeared from time to time in the great centres of Europe and America. Under his guidance the work of book-binding, which was formerly carried on in the family at home, was systematized. In 1844 the old hand-press was superseded by the first power press. Stereotyping was introduced in 1846; in 1856 steel and copper printing; and in 1858 electrotyping. In 1853 a house was opened in New York. By this time the two brothers had built up a business in Catholic books and prints that was known the world over. They also took an active part in charitable work, and started a fund for a hospital, which has since been erected.

CHARLES BENZIGER
Born 1799, died 1873

NICHOLAS BENZIGER
Born 1808, died 1864

Sons of the Founder of the Firm

"On the retirement of Charles and Nicholas Benziger (1860), the business was continued by Charles, Martin, and J. N. Adelrich, sons of the former, and Nicholas, Adelrich, and Louis, sons of the latter. Under this third generation the different branches of the house were still further developed, chromolithography and other modern printing methods being added. In 1867 the 'Alte und Neue Welt,' the first illustrated popular Catholic German magazine on a large scale, was begun, and then appeared a number of illustrated family books of devout reading and a series of schoolbooks, including a Bible History in twelve languages, together with prayerbooks by well-known authors. Between 1880 and 1895 a fourth generation succeeded to the business, and the firm name was changed to Benziger and Company.

"The house of Benziger Brothers in the United States was established in New York in 1853 by the Swiss house, but its development as a publishing house did not begin until 1860, when J. N. Adelrich Benziger (d. 1878) and Louis Benziger (d. 1896) took charge. In 1860 a house was opened in Cincinnati and in 1887 one in Chicago. The publishing of English Catholic books was vigorously undertaken, and to-day the catalogue covers the field of devotional, educational, and juvenile literature, besides works of a theological character.

Since 1864 the firm has manufactured sacred vessels and church furniture. The American firm of Benziger Brothers is now independent of the Swiss house. The Holy See conferred on the firm the title 'Printers to the Holy Apostolic See' in 1867, and 'The Pontifical Institute of Christian Art' in 1888."

To this Benziger Brothers have added a few portraits and would further supplement the article by explaining that Einsiedeln—where the Benzigers are one of the oldest Catholic families, their descent in this place going back in a direct line to the 16th century—is in the heart of the Catholic part of Switzerland, and is the seat of one of the world's most famous pilgrimages, dating back to the death in 861 of St. Meinrad, of the Order of St. Benedict. The famous Benedictine Abbey of Einsiedeln is noted for the number of eminent writers it has produced, and it may be of interest to mention that there was a printing press in use in this Abbey as far back as 1664.

A fresh impetus was given to the Church goods department of Benziger Brothers when they moved, in 1894, their silverware shop and their art metal atelier to their new, commodious, and well-appointed establishment in Brooklyn, N. Y. There, with greater facilities, they began the production of large goods, such as pulpits, altar-rails, gas and electric fixtures, etc., etc.

During the last twenty-three years Benziger Brothers have added more than 1000 publications to their list. Among their miscellaneous books will be found American as well as English and Irish authors. Up to that time the only American authors of fiction in their list were Father Finn and Dr. Maurice F. Egan; since then more than fifty new writers have been added. In prayerbooks they may mention the widely-circulated, popular books of Father Lasance. A new departure in schoolbooks are the New Century Catholic Readers, with many exquisite colored illustrations; a series of illustrated German-English Readers; and also two series of Arithmetics; an Elementary Geography for Catholic schools, and last, but not least, an Advanced Geography, just completed, with special supplements for the different states. This latter undertaking is equalled in importance only by the establishment in 1898 of Benziger's Magazine, an illustrated Catholic family monthly, that has now a circulation of more than 100,000 copies a month.

These results could be attained only at a very great expense, and taking this opportunity to thank the Episcopate, the Reverend Clergy, the Religious Orders, and the Catholic laity, as well as the Catholic authors, for their support, they hope to be favored with a continuance of their confidence and patronage.

The present members of the firm of Benziger Brothers, New York, Cincinnati, Chicago, are Nicholas C. Benziger (son of Nicholas Benziger), who entered the firm in 1880; Louis G. Benziger (son of Louis Benziger), who became a partner in 1895; and Xavier N. Benziger (son of Nicholas C. Benziger), who entered the firm in 1912, the first of the fifth generation.

It always has been the earnest endeavor of the members of the firm to continue in the old traditions of the house and to be conservative and careful in their undertakings, progressive and up-to-date in the make of their publications and in introducing them to the Catholic public.

AUTHORS' INDEX

TO

CATALOGUE OF CATHOLIC BOOKS IN ENGLISH TO-DAY IN PRINT IN AMERICA AND EUROPE.

The names of authors who wrote books in English are printed in Roman type. Since this catalogue as a rule mentions only such books as are in print to-day, many books of an author may be missing in this list.

The numbers in parentheses after the book numbers refer to the number of the plate where an author's portrait may be found in the illustrated edition of this catalogue, which is printed on better paper and bound in cloth.

The names of those authors whose books were originally written in another language than English, and of which there is an English translation, are printed in italic type.

Benziger's Advanced Geography. Made Expressly for Catholic Schools. List, 1.25. 1.05

". . . A text-book of geography, therefore, comprehensive in scope, accurate in details, orderly in treatment, and Catholic in spirit, is imperatively needed. Having examined the proof sheets of Benziger's Advanced Geography, having noted its arrangement and treatment of topics, its splendid illustrations and maps, above all having admired its faithful embodiment of the Catholic ideals above expressed, I feel it a duty to recommend it for consideration by our school authorities, as the best geography in the country, and the finest school-book of its kind ever published. I know that this is saying a great deal; but an examination of the book and a comparison of it with other geographies will, I think, sustain my high estimate of the work."—REV. THOMAS O'BRIEN, Former Superintendent of Schools, Diocese of Brooklyn.

Four Gospels and the Acts of the Apostles, The. With maps. Special edition for Parochial Schools. List, 0.25. 0.20⅔

At the suggestion of leading Catholic educators we have issued "The Four Gospels and the Acts of the Apostles" as a school book. Apart from the ideal moral examples inculcated by the reading of the Life and teachings of the Son of God, there is a distinct value in the study of the New Testament from an historical standpoint. The book is printed from large, clear type on fine paper, and the binding is strong and durable. The low price at which it is issued should place it in every Catholic school in the land.

These plans or outlines have stood the test of actual work in the class-room and have made the dreaded composition, if not a joy forever, at least a thing interesting and profitable to both teacher and pupil. The material is divided according to the ten months of the school term and then sub-divided into weeks.
